Horses, like us, have twelve major meridians, and along these pathways, we find acu-points, specific anatomical locations where we can influence chi. When we access acu-points through either finger pressure (acupressure) or needles (acupuncture), chi imbalances can be resolved, helping the body to return to its natural state of health.

Acupuncture points are found along lines or “ channels ” on the body. Originally these paths were named after body organs, and that naming system has stuck to this day. Humans, dogs, horses, etc., all have these channels such as bladder,
