Kenneth Hart - Orientation and Introduction to the Ancient World*Breaking Bread Episode 12 (feat. Ken Forkish) Modernism And Nation Building Turkish* She shows how modern architecture came to be the primary visual expression of the so-called republican revolution—especially in the case of representative public buildings and in the idealized form of the modern house. She also illustrates Turkish architects' efforts to legitimize modern forms on rational, scientific grounds and to “nationalize” them by showing their compatibility with Turkish building traditions.

Modernism and Nation Building Turkish Architectural Culture in the Early Republic

Modernism and Nation Building
In Modernism and Nation Building, Sibel Bozdoğan argues that the book's two eponymous concepts were intricately tied together during the end of the Ottoman Empire and the first decade and a half of Republican Turkey. Noting that Turkish architects adopted modernism because of its rational and functional aspects, the author highlights their drive to eschew the style's international connotations and attempts to “nationalize” its form.
