A different style of layout utilizes a long panel, similar to a widescreen view. These panels create more of a cinematic feel to the comic. The length also creates the illusion of extended time. Now, we examine the traditional 'strip' layout - 3 panels. These are most common in newspaper/online serials which use a wider format. There are variations on the strip which use 4 or even 5 panels in a wide but short layout.

This system uses a 1.5 ratio which is quite common in the comic world. The page dimensions are 11" x 17". My inside content area is 10" X 15". This grid differs from most blue-line pages you might buy from the local comic shop because: 1) it utilizes a consistent system of 3rds. 2) differentiated gutter sizes.
